Conclusion/Brief comment:
Policy GP13: Householder Development is generally supportive of proposals for domestic extensions, alterations and other such householder development provided that: there are no significant adverse effects on the amenities of neighbouring properties; the design, scale, mass and form would not detract from the open character of open locations; and, they do not adversely affect the special interest of a Conservation Area or Area of Biodiversity Importance or Protected Building or Protected Monument.

The boundary to the north-east of the garage, which is the shared boundary with the adjacent property, is formed with a mesh fence and sparse vegetation, which results in the existing garage being highly visible from the neighbouring properties garden. The location of the garage is on an area of land that is raised above the level of the road, which allows for views from the highway and results in the garage having a high level of visibility, although the structure of the dwelling and existing boundary vegetation block visibility in long distance views from the east and west.

The existing garage is metal in construction with a green colouring, which is considered to cause a detrimental effect on the visual amenity of the area that is created by the more traditional styling of the dwellings and largely natural surroundings. It is considered that the removal of this feature and replacing it with a timber and slate structure would result in a positive effect to the visual amenity of the area, and would be a less obtrusive feature within this location.

The property to the west is an agricultural field, and the garage is not within close enough proximity to the boundary with the neighbouring property to result in any significant effects to the amenity of the adjacent property.

On the above basis the proposal is considered to conform to the objectives of policies GP1: Landscape Character and Open Land, GP8: Design and GP13: Householder Development, and is therefore acceptable under all policies.

All material considerations as set out in the Land Planning and Development (Guernsey) Law, 2005 and the Land and Planning (General Provisions) Ordinance 2007 have been taken into account in the assessment of this application.
