Conclusion/Brief comment:

It is a requirement under the Land Planning and Development (Guernsey) Law, 2005, when considering applications affecting protected buildings, to secure so far as possible that the special historic, architectural, traditional or other special characteristics (including setting) are preserved. This duty is reflected in Policy GP5 of the IDP.

Under Section 38 of The Land Planning and Development (Guernsey) Law, 2005 the Authority has a duty to pay “special attention to the desirability of preserving and enhancing the character and appearance” of Conservation Areas. This duty is encapsulated in Policy GP4 (Conservation Areas) which states that “proposals for development within a Conservation Area will be supported where the development conserves and, where possible, enhances the special character, architectural or historic interest and appearance of the particular Conservation Area.”

Whilst the agent has not comprehensively explained the special interest of the protected building, including its age and value of certain aspects of the protected building that are original or modern replacements as set out in Policy GP5, sufficient information is available to the Authority to suggest that the roof fabric is not original and therefore positioning the panels above the existing slates would not cause undue harm to the building.

Subject to appropriate conditions, the proposal is considered to preserve the special interest of the building for the purposes of Policy GP5.

With regard to Policy GP4, the proposal is considered to conserve the character and appearance of the Conservation Area.

By virtue of the type of proposal, this form of renewable technology is compliant with Policy GP9 (Sustainable Development).

All material considerations as set out in the Land Planning and Development (Guernsey) Law, 2005 and the Land and Planning (General Provisions) Ordinance 2007 have been taken into account in the assessment of this application.

Based on the above, the application is considered compliant with the relevant Island Development Plan policies; it is therefore recommended that planning permission be granted, subject to conditions.
