Policies considered most relevant:

GP13 – Householder Development

Conclusion/Brief comment:

Policy GP13 is generally supportive of proposals for domestic extensions, alterations and other such householder development, unless material considerations indicate otherwise or conflicts with other Plan policies or the States strategic objectives are identified.

In this case the application proposes small conservatory style uPVC extensions to the main dwelling, the erection of a detached garden room, new greenhouse/storage outbuilding, along with pillars, gates and alterations to hardstanding and landscaping.

The proposed garden room is appropriate in scale and position to be considered an acceptable ancillary building. The garden room is situated close to the boundary with the neighbours, although it is not positioned in a location which is likely to result in any significant loss of light or amenity to the nearest neighbours. The flat roof design also minimises any impact to neighbouring dwellings.

The outbuilding is also of an acceptable size and design, positioned away from any neighbouring dwellings.

The alterations proposed to enlarge the hard standing, erection of a wall/pillar/gate within the front garden are acceptable given the enclosed nature of the frontage and allow for the creation of an improved parking/turning area.

While the rear extension to the dwelling would be exempt work and not require permission, the side extension and other works are acceptable under the provisions of Policy GP13. Information has been submitted which demonstrates that sustainable development principles have been considered in developing this scheme, in accordance with the requirements of Policy GP9.

The decking shown on the plans proposed to the rear is approx. 0.40m above ground level and so would be exempt work and would not require express consent. The front low boundary wall is also exempt as less than 0.9m in height.

All material considerations as set out in the Land Planning and Development (Guernsey) Law, 2005 and the Land Planning and Development (General Provisions) Ordinance, 2007 have been taken into account in the assessment of this application.
